BONUS RAID STAMPED AS BRIBE FOR VOTES

Some Senators Frankly Admit Scheme Is to Get Support at Polls.

TO STRESS THAT POINT

Lines in Senate Fight Probably Will Be Drawn This Week.

DENUNCIATION BY MYERS

Montana Member Assails Effort to Turn Patriotic Service Into Greed.

By LOUIS SEIBOLD.
Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
New York Herald Bureau, Washington, D. C., April 10.

That the bonus raid on the public Treasury is a vote getting scheme pure and simple is frankly admitted by some of the Senators who will soon be called upon to declare themselves regarding it.

Senators who are opposed to the raid boldly assert that the political phase of the propaganda promoting the $5,000,000,000 scheme is counted on to prove the controlling factor in its favor. It is the purpose of Republican and Democratic members of the Senate who will defy the threats of the American Legion and oppose the raid at every turn to place particular stress on this feature of the enterprise.

It is their intention to point out the methods adopted by the American Legion to coerce Senators by threats of political reprisals, as was done during the consideration of bonus legislation in the House of Representatives.

Such threats, however, will not influence Senators who are convinced that the bonus raid is an insult to the patriotism of the young men who upheld the national honor on foreign battlefields and an injustice to the whole people of the country.

More Than a Third Opposed.

There are more than one-third of the members of the upper house who take this stand. Some have already declared themselves. Others have reserved the announcement of their position to escape annoyance at the hands of the American Legion's lobbyists daily engaged in promoting the bonus scheme.

The program for fighting the raid has not been perfected. It has progressed far enough, however, to justify the statement that if the bonus propagandists are finally to win a victory it will only be after one of the most stubborn contests in the history of the Senate. The opposing lines will not be clearly defined until the Senate Finance Committee has reported the tariff bill and turned its attention to the misfit certificate loan bonus plan passed by the House. That will probably be toward the end of the present week.

Senators opposed to the bill are eager for the fray to begin. They hold the opinion that the sooner the exact meaning of the bonus scheme is revealed to the country the more decisive will be the revulsion of popular feeling against it, as already reflected by the storm of protests aroused at the surrender of the House of Representatives to the bonus claimants.

This is the opinion of Senator Henry L. Myers, Democrat (Mon.), who today described the bonus raid as "a vote getting scheme." The Montana Senator has opposed the bonus from its inception. He believes that discus-

AMUNDSEN NEAR DEATH; PLANE LANDS, TURNS OVER

Explorer and Party Forced Down in Field at Clarion, Pa., on First Lap of Continental Journey—All Escape With Scratches and Bruises.

CLARION, Pa., April 10.—Capt. Roald Amundsen, Arctic explorer, and four flying companions narrowly escaped death at Miola, near here, to-day, when the monoplane in which they were going from New York to Cleveland, the first lap of a transcontinental journey, turned over when it was forced down in a field. All were slightly scratched and bruised, but otherwise uninjured. Those with Capt. Amundsen were H. T. Lewis of Bellefonte, Pa.; H. J. Gade of New York, E. Buhl and J. Ondell.

Capt. Amundsen is resting at a hotel to-night and intends, he said, to go to Cleveland by train to-morrow. Mr. Gade expects to go to New York. The others will remain here to direct repairs to the monoplane, the wings of which were broken.

CLEVELAND, April 10.—A forced landing, necessitated by lack of gasoline, wrecked Capt. Amundsen's monoplane, according to a telegram received here by Glenn L. Martin, aviation expert.

"Amundsen should have stopped at Bellefonte, Pa., for fuel, as a high wind impeded the machine and made necessary excessive use of gasoline," said Martin in explaining the mishap.

The J1-5, all metal monoplane, left Central Park, L. I., at 3:18 o'clock yesterday morning.

The plane was presented to the explorer by J. M. Larsen, its inventor. This is the same plane which flew to Fort Norman, near the Arctic Circle, last year.

tion of it in the Senate will show to the people of the country exactly what it means, and that they will emphasize their resentment against it by their votes in the coming Congressional elections.

"I am opposed to a bonus for former service men," said Senator Myers to-day, "because I believe it wrong in principle and also because I know that the business conditions of the country do not justify it. Either objection is sufficient, or should be."

"I favor, and from the beginning have favored, doing everything within the bounds of reason for those of our former service men who were disabled as a result of their service. To them I think we should be not only just but most liberal and generous. I have with pleasure supported every measure that has come up in Congress for their benefit."

"However, to vote a huge cash bonus to young men who served their country and returned from the war safe, sound and unharmed and generally actually benefited by their experience for doing a plain patriotic duty, which is the duty of every loyal citizen when the life or rights of his country are at stake, I think would be wrong in principle."

Highest Duty of a Citizen.

"To defend one's country when its life or safety is at stake is the highest duty of a citizen and the greatest possible expression of patriotism. We all owe that common duty. To contend that one should be paid compensation for performing that duty is utterly contrary to our traditions and the principles of a self-governing country."

"It is entirely foreign to the spirit of a republican form of government. It is Prussianism. It is analogous to claiming that one should be paid for defending his home from violent invasion and assault."

"It never has been done for American soldiers in any war in which this country ever engaged, and I do not think it should be done now. It would be commercializing patriotism and would be detrimental to the fine sentiments of loyalty and destructive of the best principles of citizenship."

"Our soldiers and sailors did a grand and glorious work. They performed a patriotic duty and performed it well and nobly. They are entitled to and have the everlasting gratitude of the people of this country. I have the greatest admiration and warmest regard for our young men who entered the service for the defense of our rights and the protection of the civilization of the world."

"However, to attempt to put a money estimate upon their service and to pay them for it would not be giving them anything. It would be taking something from them. It would take from them the glory to which they are justly entitled of having responded to their country's call and offered their all in defense of their country; the supreme glory, the greatest heritage that can come to an American citizen."

"It would detract from that glory and rob them of a priceless heritage."

"Furthermore the business condi-

anti-prohibition conflict and throw in your lot with a movement that has reformed more drunkards, both men and women, and rebuilt more homes made destitute through drink than any other people on earth?

"Anyways, I am confident that you will not leave our drive without your valued friendship, or our movement without your treasured good will, because of my sense of obligation as one of the army's foremost leaders to protect our standards."

Mr. Speyer's reply follows:

"Many thanks for your kind telegram. I am just as much opposed to the saloon as you are, but conditions here are different from Great Britain. I consider our present prohibition laws extremely harmful in many ways and have enlisted in the campaign to get them amended or repealed, which may take some years."

"I regret, therefore, I cannot follow your suggestion of withdrawing my name as a national vice-president. As regards my continuing to act as chairman of this year's Salvation Army collection, or resigning, I will do whatever the citizens committee that honored me by electing me, knowing my connection with the anti-prohibition movement, may wish me to do in the best interest of your good work. I shall remain a friend of the Salvation Army and an admirer of your efforts to better conditions."

CALDER AGAIN REJECTS BONUS FOR WELL MEN

Discusses Legislation With G. O. P. Committee of 100.

Senator William M. Calder gave the latest news about Federal legislation to the Republican Committee of 100, which met yesterday at the house of Dr. and Mrs. Edward H. Penrose, 17 Washington Square North. Mrs. Mary Hatch Willard presided.

The Senator talked about the bonus, the tariff, immigration, the 5-5-3 naval ratio and the revision of the income tax. "I belong to the Finance Committee to which the bonus bill is referred," he said, "and am inclined to think that the committee will report the bonus bill. But whether it is this bill now in the hands of the committee or another bonus bill I shall vote against it, if it is going to compel the people to pay out large sums of money. Before I shall be willing to spend money for well soldiers I want to be sure the disabled ones are being cared for."

He advocated a reduction of the income tax, although this Administration, he reminded the audience, has already lowered taxes by $900,000,000. "I anticipate that before the next Congress closes some such change will have been made. I would be willing to vote for a sales tax of 1 per cent. if it would mean a reduction of the income tax. If the taxes were so revised it would work the least hardship to the people."

Of the Allies' financial obligations to the United States he said that he felt sure before the end of summer a plan will be developed whereby the nations that are able to pay will begin to pay interest on their war loans. He favored branch immigration stations in European cities.

Mr. Calder said that the Senate would urge the foreign valuation basis. "Today every factory in Germany is working to the limit," he declared, "and our men are walking the streets. Some one in between is getting the big profits."

OUTLOOK IMPROVES IN PAPER INDUSTRY

Optimism Rules Among 1,000 Members Here for Association Meetings.

More than 1,000 paper manufacturers, merchants and jobbers arrived here yesterday to attend the forty-fifth annual convention of the American Pulp and Paper Association and affiliated associations at the Waldorf this week.

The first day was taken up with committee meetings and in arranging the scheduled for the twenty-odd organizations represented at the convention. Among them are the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry, Book Paper Manufacturers Association, Paper Makers Advertising Club, Salesmen's Association of the Paper Industry, Wrapping Paper Manufacturers Bureau, Cover Paper Manufacturers Association, Vegetable Paraffin Manufacturers Association, Gummed Paper Manufacturers Association, Card Board Manufacturers Association, Waxed Paper Manufacturers Association, Writing Paper Manufacturers Association, Glazed and Fancy Paper Manufacturers Association, Pulp Manufacturers Association, Sulphite Bond Division, Binders Board Manufacturers Association, Tissue Paper Manufacturers Association and the Toilet Paper Converters Association.

W. J. Raybold, president of the American Pulp and Paper Association, said the outlook for the paper industry has improved. A year ago, he said, the reverse was the case. This year, however, the paper manufacturing business has shown a turn for the better and all the paper men of this country and Canada with whom Mr. Raybold has talked take an optimistic view of the situation.

The general business meeting and joint conference of the convention will be held Thursday with a reception and dinner at the Waldorf that evening. Subjects that will be discussed are "Foreign and Domestic Commerce," "Finance, Tariff," "A Federal Reserve Bank" and "Business and Industry and the Paper Manufacturer."

PREDICT JUDGE IRVINE WILL CARRY ALL CITIES

Democratic Prophecy Combated by Republicans.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 10.—Expecting that a heavy vote will be cast to-morrow at the special Congress election in the Thirty-seventh District in which the repeal of the Volstead act is a predominant issue, Democratic leaders of Tompkins County to-day made the prediction that Judge Frank Irvine of this city, the Democratic candidate, would carry all of the cities of the district, including Ithaca, Elmira, Corning and Hornell, and would receive a large vote in the rural sections as well.

This was disputed by Republican leaders here, who admitted, however, the possibility of a reduction of the normal Republican plurality.
